Prayer to end Human trafficking

Oh God, we didn't see them.
But you did—

The hundreds and thousands of human beings Trafficked each year to join the millions who are trapped
    in modern-day slavery.
Under terrible conditions, they work in factories, plow
fields,
    harvest crops, work quarries, fill brothels, clean
homes, and haul water.

Many are children with tiny fingers for weaving rugs
    and small shoulders for bearing rifles.
Their labor is forced, their bodies beaten, their faces hidden
    from those who don't really want to see them.

But you see them all, God of the poor.
You hear their cry and you answer
    by opening our eyes, and breaking our hearts
    and loosening our tongues to insist:

No more. No more.

Amen

VATICAN CITY (CNS) -- Blessing bands of wool that archbishops will wear around their shoulders, Pope Francis said, "It is a sign that the shepherds do not live for themselves but for the sheep." "It is a sign that, in order to possess life, we have to lose it, give it away," the pope said during his homily at Mass for the feast of Sts. Peter and Paul June 29. The 30 archbishops receiving palliums included: Archbishops Wilton D. Gregory of Washington; Michael J. Byrnes of Agana, Guam; Peter A. Comensoli of Melbourne, Australia; Peter J. Hundt of St. John's, Newfoundland; and John Wilson of Southwark, England. A pallium also was blessed for Archbishop Michael Mulhall of Kingston, Ontario, who reportedly was unable to attend. The palliums are a woolen band that the heads of archdioceses wear around their shoulders over their Mass vestments. Benedictine nuns at the Monastery of St. Cecilia in Rome use wool from lambs blessed by the pope each year on the Jan. 21 feast of St. Agnes to make the palliums, which are kept by St. Peter's tomb until the Mass in St. Peter's Basilica.

Peter and Paul in St. Peter's Basilica at the Vatican June 29, 2019. After the Mass the pope presented palliums to new archbishops from around the world. (CNS photo/Paul Haring)
